Recently, the CDC added vaccine-specific content to its extensive COVID-19 website. CDC's new resources include information on vaccination planning, how vaccine safety is being ensured, and frequently asked questions. These resources are intended to clarify how COVID-19 vaccine recommendations will be made and how the vaccines will be monitored for safety, in order to build trust and confidence in future COVID-19 vaccines.

As more information becomes available and as vaccines become authorized or approved and recommended for use in the United States frequent updates will be made to this website as well as CDC's Vaccination and Immunization website.
