FAC Overview and Purpose

A Mass Fatality Incident (MFI) is defined as an incident, disaster, or public health emergency where more human deaths have occurred than can be managed with local or regional resources. In the immediate aftermath of an MFI, family and friends of the victims/missing persons will spontaneously start to gather to search for their loved one or to seek information about their loved one's location and condition. Within 12-24 hours after an MFI, the Family Assistance Center (FAC) is established as a means to provide a safe, secure, centrally located place for family members of potential victims to obtain information and a range of support services. The FAC exists to provide support services to those who visit the Victim Information Center (VIC) which is located within the FAC.

The FAC is a multi-agency operation, staffed by individuals from social services, volunteer organizations, the medicolegal authority's office and other governmental and nongovernmental agencies. Relationships should be established with all involved agencies prior to an MFI in order to allow for the quick, efficient, and successful activation of an FAC.

With the focus of the FAC operations on the families of the victims, it is important to think broadly and keep the following information in mind during the FAC planning process:

- The duration of an FAC operation will vary depending upon the incident, therefore flexibility in the planning stages will be imperative
- Cultural differences must be taken into consideration, as an MFI may have victims who are native to foreign countries or who have culturally diverse backgrounds
- A full FAC operation will take time to set up, basic services should be operative and available within 12 hours of the initial response to an MFI
- Photography should not be allowed in any part of the FAC
- Any reference in this document to the family members of victims will encompass all friends and loved ones

Site Selection for the FAC

The right location for housing the FAC should be selected carefully. Consideration should be given to the location, size of the facility, and varying size and scale of a potential MFI.

Location

- The best location for an FAC will be largely contingent upon the type of incident and number of fatalities
- The FAC location should be relatively close in proximity to the MFI site, so that personnel traveling back and forth between the two can do so with ease

- The location should be just far enough away that families will not be subjected to viewing or hearing anything at the incident site
- $\circ~$ The location should not require families to pass by the incident site on their way to the FAC
- The location should be easily accessible for the victims' families and friends
 - If the location is not easily accessible by public transportation, or if there is a limited amount of onsite parking, arrangements should be made to provide transportation for the victims' families and friends to and from the FAC
- A location with easily controlled access should be considered, which should ease the process of establishing a security perimeter
 - A location with either a natural sight barrier, or the ability to establish a sight barrier should be considered, to protect the location from the view of the media and general public
 - Consideration should also be given towards the number of entrances/exits to the FAC. Entrances should be limited in order to control access to and from the FAC.
- The FAC must be compliant with the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA)¹ and also meet the Texas Accessibility Standards²
- The FAC may not be local to some of the victims' families. If they will be traveling a great distance, the FAC should assist the family in making overnight accommodations. Note: This does not mean the FAC pays for the overnight accommodations.
 - Transportation between the FAC and hotels where the families are staying should also be arranged
- The locations identified as capable of accommodating an FAC operation should be flexible and available both for immediate use, and for the long-term, depending upon the nature of the incident
 - The amount of time needed to recover and identify the victims of an MFI will be the determining factor in regards to the duration of FAC operations
- Ideally, one large FAC should be able to handle the needs of all of the victims' families, rather than several smaller ones

Size

- The services offered in the FAC will require many breakout rooms, with each having sufficient privacy
 - \circ The bigger the incident, the more rooms will likely be needed

¹ADA Checklist for Existing Facilities http://www.adachecklist.org/doc/fullchecklist/ada-checklist.pdf

² Architectural Barriers Texas Accessibility Standards https://www.license.state.tx.us/ab/abtas.htm

- The amount of space required for FAC operations should not be underestimated. The chart below gives an example of the size considerations depending on the scale of the incident.
 - $\circ~$ There should be enough room for eight to 10 family members per victim and the required staff to run the FAC
 - A larger venue should be chosen to allow room for expansion, in the event more families arrive than expected
 - $\circ~$ A venue with an ample amount of rooms of all sizes to house the services being offered at the FAC should be considered
- A larger venue may be required if a Call Center will be co-located with the FAC

Scale of the Incident:	Small	Medium	Large	Catastrophic
Number of Potential Fatalities	Less than 50	50 to 300	300 to 1,000	More than 1,000
Daily Capacity for Critical Service Operations	8 stations: 96 interviews	25 stations: 300 interviews	50 stations: 600 interviews	50-75 stations: Up to 900 interviews
Potential Number of FAC Patrons	Less than 400	400 to 2,400	2,400 to 8,000	More than 8,000
Suggested Square Footage	4,686- 12,525	12,525-61,030	61,030- 197,340	197,340+

Site Amenities and Other Considerations

- Security, such as local law enforcement, should be present to monitor activity inside and outside of the building, including the parking lot and the perimeter
- Internet service should be available for use, both wireless and Ethernet
- Good cell phone reception should be available. If not, a portable cell tower should be used.
- Landline telephone service should be available for administrative purposes and for the Call Center, if it will be co-located on-site
- The availability of cable television hookups should be considered, if TVs will be provided in the FAC. The effect that streaming media coverage may have on the family and friends of the victims should be considered.
- A sufficient amount of power outlets should be available for connecting various types of office equipment and computers for the FAC operation. Families will also require available power outlets to charge various mobile devices.
- Enough restroom facilities should be available to accommodate the anticipated number of families that will arrive, in addition to the FAC staff and volunteers
 - Assume 1-bathroom stall per 30 people

- A location with a large common area or lounge area that provides the families a place to relax and allows for the provision of food services should be considered. Food services may include catering or simply snacks and drinks.
- An ample amount of parking for victims' families and FAC staff and volunteers should be available
 - \circ $\,$ Families may travel to the FAC in more than one or two vehicles $\,$
 - If a facility chosen to house the FAC has a lack of ample on-site parking, off-site parking and transportation to and from the FAC should be arranged

Recommended Site Locations

- Hotels
 - If a local jurisdiction plans to establish the FAC in a hotel, the jurisdiction should consider entering a memorandum of understanding (MOU)/agreement (MOA) with the hotel prior to an incident.
 - $\circ~$ If a hotel is selected as the site for the FAC:
 - A determination must be made as to whether or not the entire hotel will be used
 - If only a portion of the hotel will be used, other guests may be indirectly impacted by the MFI. FAC staff must coordinate with hotel management to move the other guests or cordon off and secure the section of the hotel being used for the FAC.
 - Families may or may not stay at the hotel chosen as the FAC
 - Incident scene personnel and responders must not stay at the hotel chosen as the FAC
 - Incident responders and victims' families should never be lodged in the same hotel, regardless of whether it is being used as an FAC
- Conference and Community Centers
- Public School Buildings
 - Schools provide a great option for FAC operations; however, they are only available for use while students are on break. If a school is selected to use for the FAC, ensure that FAC operations will be completed before school is back in session.
- Recreational Centers/Facilities
- Meeting Spaces on College/University Campuses
- Churches and other religious institutions
 - These locations are not preferable if other suitable facilities are available. A religiously neutral location should be chosen, as some families may not be comfortable coming to a place of worship for family assistance services.

- Once a location has been determined and the FAC is ready to open:
 - Inform the local Emergency Operations Center (EOC)
 - \circ $\;$ The location of the FAC should be announced
 - $_{\odot}$ $\,$ All major television and radio stations should be contacted $\,$
 - FAC location announcements should be made every few minutes during the first 24 hours

The FAC Management Team

The FAC Management Team is in charge of organizing, coordinating, executing, and monitoring all FAC operations. Additional coordination with the numerous outside agencies and organizations providing support services is key to ensuring families get the assistance they need. These organizations have their own needs and expectations. For this reason, it is important to establish a clear command structure, mission, and list of objectives from the start of the FAC operation.

The FAC Management Team operates in accordance with the Incident Command System (ICS). The FAC Group Supervisor reports to the Fatality Management Branch Director in the Operations Section of a local response (Attachment 1: ICS Organization Chart)

During the height of FAC operation, the management team should meet at least once per day to discuss any outstanding issues, work towards resolving those issues, and deliver an Operational Period Briefing to the Fatality Management Branch Director. The following list is an example of some of the possible positions to include on an FAC Management Team and their roles. There is no right or wrong way to organize the team, and the number of team members will depend upon the size of the FAC and its duration of operation. The positions listed below come from the Houston Regional Catastrophic Preparedness Initiative Regional Mass Fatality Management Field Operating Guide.

FAC Group Supervisor

The FAC Group Supervisor should manage all activities required to support the families and friends of the victims and collect the antemortem information needed to identify the victims.

The FAC Group Supervisor could come from a variety of organizations, including Public Health, Medicolegal Authority's Office, American Red Cross, or Office of Emergency Management. The FAC Group Supervisor should have strong management skills, have experience working with nongovernmental organizations (NGOs) that will support FAC component, and be adept at working with grieving individuals.

FAC Staff and Volunteers

All staff members and volunteers working in the FAC should be provided with an orientation session and proper training for their duties. They should also be provided with an identification badge to wear while working their shift. The training can be in the form of just-in-time training. Preparing staff and volunteers for their roles before their shift will limit mistakes and allow for a more efficient provision of services.

The following should be reviewed in the staff and volunteer orientation:

- Mealtime information
- Parking instructions
- Shift check-in and check-out procedures
- Tips and reminders on proper behavior in the FAC

- Brief overview of everyone's job function
- Tours of the FAC so staff will have a mental layout of the overall operation and understand how the FAC will flow
- The importance of not talking to the media should be stressed
- The importance of the confidentiality of information provided by families
- Information on any known cultural differences that must be taken into considerations

As staff and volunteers arrive for the start of their shifts, their identification should be verified and checked against the daily work schedule, to ensure they are to be on the premises. All staff and volunteers should fill out a registration form on their first day (Attachment 2: Staff & Volunteer Registration Form) and should sign-in and sign-out on the daily sign-in log every day they work (Attachment 3: Staff & Volunteer Sign-In Form). The local jurisdiction should consider having staff and volunteers complete a confidentiality agreement similar to the example provided in Attachment 4: FAC Confidentiality Agreement.

FAC Components

The FAC interior floor layout is scalable based on the size, impact, and needs of the incident (Attachment 5: Sample FAC Floorplan Configuration). Some main components to the layout that should be included regardless of the incident are listed below.

Core Components:

- Reception and Information Desk
- Family Briefing
- Victim Information Center (Antemortem Data Collection)
- Call Center

Support Services:

- Behavioral Health Services
- Spiritual Care Services
- Child Care Services
- First-Aid Station

General Logistical Suggestions:

- A few computer stations should be arranged around the FAC for families to use to check email or to conduct any other necessary business
- A separate meal and lounge area should be established exclusively for FAC volunteers and staff
- Snacks or meals should be provided to the families at the FAC. These items may be placed in either the Family Briefing Room or a different common area, if one is available.

- Dietary restrictions should be taken into consideration when providing food
- Tissue boxes should be readily available throughout the FAC
- Radio communication between all stations and supervisory FAC personnel should be provided
- Whether or not to place televisions in common/meal areas, the Call Center, and the rooms where the management and staff offices and break/meeting areas are located, should be considered
- Clear and ample signage should be placed throughout the interior and exterior of the FAC, so families know where to enter, and where to go once they are inside
 - Signs should contain large, bold-faced font designating each service station (e.g. "Family Briefing Room," "Behavioral Health Services," "Quiet Prayer/Meditation Room"). Consider placing the agency logo in one corner of the signs for uniformity.
 - Signs should be hung above table stations, or if all stations are in rooms, clearly affix signs to the walls next to the appropriate doors, or onto easels placed outside the doors
 - Make sure outdoor signage is weatherproof (against rain, wind, etc.).
 Outdoor signage should be larger, if possible, so families can navigate the parking lot and find the FAC entrance with ease.

Reception and Information Desk

The main purpose of the Reception and Information Desk is to welcome and register families and visitors to the FAC. Families and visitors may include:

- \circ $\;$ Those whose loved ones are "known missing" or "possible missing"
- o Those who have already been interviewed by law enforcement
- In some cases, a manifest of the victims from the incident may be available and can be used to screen people coming to the FAC
- Sometimes dignitaries may wish to visit with the families to express condolences. These visits are usually pre-arranged.
- News media and curious members of the general public are not allowed in the FAC or allowed inside the perimeter establishing FAC grounds
- Family and visitors arriving at the FAC should complete an initial Registration Form (Attachment 6: Family Member Registration Form). This form will serve as the foundation of information for their case file.
 - The registration staff should include copies of all forms filled out by family members in the case file, which will be to be sent to the Victim Information Center (VIC)
- A sign-in log should be maintained for families to check-in when they arrive and check-out when they leave the FAC each day (Attachment 7: Family Member Daily Sign-In Sheet). The family sign-in log should be separate from the staff and volunteer sign-in log.

- $\circ~$ Families and visitors should be informed of the sign-in instructions for future visits to the FAC
- Families must sign-out of the FAC upon leaving each day. All contact information must be recorded, in case important information or a death notification needs to be relayed to the family
- Photo identification badges should be produced to credential the family members and any visitors during their first visit to the FAC
 - Family and staff identification badges should be easily distinguishable
 - \circ Each person's badge should be checked every time they enter the FAC
 - New badges may be issued everyday with slight differences from the previous day's badge. This will keep anyone from reproducing the badge to gain access to the FAC.
- Family escorts should be available to bring the families around the FAC from station to station and orient them to the process and layout. Escorts should personally assist the families with any questions or needs that they may have. The family escort should:
 - Link the families with the appropriate person or agency to answer any questions they may have. The escort is also there to listen and offer support; therefore, they should have crisis training.
 - Give the current status of the recovery and identification process
 - Information should be received from daily staff/operations briefings
 - Give the schedule and location of the family briefings
 - Inform the family of the FAC hours of operation and important telephone numbers
 - Provide the safety and security regulations and FAC policies
 - Inform the family of available child care at the FAC
 - Explain the importance of the signing in and out process and obtaining contact numbers/address
 - Point out rest area, support services, and first aid available

Reception and Information Desk Logistical Suggestions:

- Filing cabinets or portable boxes to store forms and documents generated during the FAC operation
- General office technology: fax machine, copier, printer, extra ink or toner cartridges, laptop computer with mouse or tablet, landline and cellular telephones, etc.
- Parking permits for families and visitors to ensure the parking lot is only being utilized by FAC attendees

- Materials of various styles for name and photo identification badges (i.e. lanyards, nametag stickers, badge holders, etc.)
- Various office supplies for general functions (pens, pencils, paper, clipboards, sticky notes, binders)
- Signage for both the information/reception area to welcome and direct families, as well as signage for the rest of the facility
- Paper shredders for operational security and maintaining victim and family confidentiality
- Maps of the facility floor layouts and the local area
- Bulletin board to post important information

Family Briefings

Family Briefings provide families with the most recent information regarding the incident response and victim identification process. The FAC Coordinator, or equivalent position, should attend all family briefings, along with other designated representatives, such as the medicolegal authority, law enforcement, a search and recovery representative, morgue operations representative, and a family assistance operations representative.

- The same individuals should be present to speak at each briefing to establish continuity and recognition with the families
- The briefings should be held on a schedule, where the families can receive updates in a timely manner, and before the media is provided the updates
 - The Joint Information Center (JIC) should coordinate with the FAC to ensure uniformity in messaging from all aspects of the incident management/response to families and the public alike
 - The Family Briefing Schedule should be posted around the FAC in highly visible areas, perhaps on designated message boards if they are established, and consider making one or two general announcements in the hour or minutes leading up to the briefing
- The first family briefing should be held within 24 hours of the FAC operation activation
 - A sample of information that should be briefed is listed in Attachment 8: Family Briefing Frequently Asked Questions
- At least one briefing per day should be conducted, even if there is no new or significant news to report
- The information being disseminated should be in language and terminology the families can understand
 - Important information should be repeated often, as some individuals may be less receptive due to their grief
 - Translators or sign language interpreters should be available, if necessary

- Behavioral health and spiritual care providers should be available to assist families during and after these briefings
- When the family briefing room is not being used for a briefing, it can double as a family gathering place, location for provision of refreshments, memorial space, etc.

Family Briefing Room Logistical Suggestions:

- A room that is large enough to accommodate all families should be chosen, such as an auditorium, multi-purpose room, or ballroom where chairs can be set up
 - There should be more than enough chairs available for all family members in attendance, along with tables for the speakers
- A conference call bridge line that allows for families who are off-site to call in and hear the updates should be available. The use of a video conference option should also be considered.
 - The news media must not gain access to this information
- A podium should be provided from which the speakers can present their information, and have audio capabilities, such as microphones and loudspeakers
 - If there is a large crowd at the FAC, it may be better to have the presenters on a stage or elevated platform so they can be seen by individuals in the back of the room
- A projector and screen should be considered, if there will be any slideshow presentations, informational graphics, or photographs shown by the presenters
- Handout packets for the families with a transcript of the briefing information and a list of the available resources and services should be considered

Victim Information Center (Antemortem Data Collection)

The Victim Information Center (VIC) should be co-located with the FAC (Attachment 5: Sample FAC Floorplan Configuration). The VIC is the responsibility of the medicolegal authority and is used to collect and process antemortem data through a formal interview with the families. Data that is gathered through these interviews can assist in positively identifying persons reported missing as victims of an MFI.

Qualified personnel, such as funeral directors or medicolegal death investigators, will collect the antemortem data through face-to face meetings or telephone conversations with the families. The VIC staff manages the antemortem data collected from medical records, dental records, photographs, DNA samples, etc. Death notifications also occur in the VIC or as designated by the medicolegal authority.

- Some of the skills necessary to conduct antemortem interviews include:
 - Knowledge of medical terminology
 - Experience with the death management process and death notification
 - Experience working with law enforcement
 - Experience with missing person services

- Cultural competency
- Skills in communicating with those experiencing grief and loss
- Just-in-time training should be considered for the interviewers to review the proper interview procedures and use of the data entry system. At a minimum, the interviewers should be given a brief orientation on the information they need to collect, including the forms they are to use.

Antemortem Data Collection Guidelines:

- Roughly two hours per interview should be allowed, and the families should be given as much time as they need to answer the questions
 - Some families may be resistant to participate because they view the antemortem interview process as giving up hope to find their loved one
 - All information provided by the families must remain confidential
- Next-of-kin status should be established and the family's death notification preference should be discussed (Attachment 9: Death Notification Preferences)
 - $_{\odot}$ $\,$ In some cases, the process of identifying remains may continue for weeks or months after the MFI $\,$
 - By completing this form, the victim's legal next of kin can inform the medicolegal authority of their preference in regards to additional notifications
 - The legal next of kin should sign the form, alongside the ME Office representative, and receive a copy
- If collecting DNA reference samples or obtaining dental records, Attachment 10: DNA Reference Collection Form and Attachment 11: Dental Records Request Form may be used
- A new file should be started for the information collected during each initial interview and updated as other records are provided from doctors' and dentists' offices
- After the interview is complete, the interviewer should provide the next of kin an individualized confidential security code that can be used by the family when requesting information over the internet or by telephone
- Funeral release forms should be on hand for families to sign (Attachment 12: Funeral Information & Release Form)
- When death notifications occur, the notification team should be comprised of a medicolegal representative, a funeral director, and a behavioral health professional. Upon request of the family, a member of the clergy may be present.
 - Before a death notification occurs:
 - Team members should be fully briefed on victims' information
 - Each team member should be prepared for questions from families
 - The issue of unidentified common tissue should be addressed, if necessary

- Families should be given the option to be informed later regarding the identification of common tissue
- Families should be informed of future memorial service and burial of common tissue
- Families should be given as much time as they need to contact the rest of the family
- Families should be informed that name and age of the victim will be released to the press thereafter

VIC Logistics and Forms

- The Disaster Mortuary Operation Response Team (DMORT) Victim Information Profile (VIP) Questionnaire (Attachment 13: DMORT Victim Information Profile) may be used, which is intended to speed up the antemortem data collection process
- A Fact Sheet should be prepared to give to the families highlighting information regarding transportation, funeral arrangements, and behavioral health counseling

Call Center

A Call Center may be established to receive initial missing persons' intake information. It can be co-located with the FAC if space allows. While the initial intent of the Call Center will be to receive reports of missing individuals, it may transition into an informational hotline during the latter part of the incident.

- The Call Center operation should be coordinated with the local EOC
 - If available, 211 may be used for call center operations
 - It may also be coordinated with the Joint Information Center, if one is established
 - Operation should be 24/7, at least in the immediate aftermath of the MFI
- A central, toll-free telephone phone number should be established and the number should be widely distributed to an array of media outlets to ensure it reaches the public
- A pre-scripted message (Attachment 14: Call Center Sample Script) may be developed, along with some standard answers to frequently asked questions, which call-takers can utilize to ensure a consistent message is being conveyed to callers
- Call-takers should use either an electronic or hardcopy intake form to ensure consistency in recording messages (Attachment 15: Call Center Intake Form)
 - Call-takers should prioritize the intake form by "known missing", "possible missing", or "not known"
 - "Known missing"- The person was last seen/heard from in the area or was confirmed deceased

- "Possible missing"- There is a reasonable assumption that the missing person was involved in the incident
- "Not known"- The person may have been in the area
- Training should be provided to all Call Center staff regarding the procedures for answering callers' questions and what information is appropriate to give to callers
 - Each caller should be informed that they will be asked some basic questions about the missing individual
 - Promises or guarantees should not be made
 - A time as to when a call will be returned should not be provided
 - Emphasis should be placed on confidentiality of family information
 - The importance of showing patience, respect, sensitivity, and compassion to all callers should be reiterated
 - The emergency and non-emergency needs of callers should be assessed (whether the request is urgent or there is time for follow-up)
 - Procedures should be in place to handle calls offering donations or volunteer time
- Callers should be provided with information on the services available at the FAC
 - A list of important phone numbers associated with the on-site FAC service providers for call transfer purposes should be maintained
- The behavioral health of the call-takers should be monitored, especially if they are receiving stressful calls

Call Center Logistical Suggestions:

- A sufficient number of lines should be provided to answer the toll-free telephone number
- Headsets should be considered for use by the call-takers
- Call Intake Forms should be on-hand for the call-takers to fill out (Attachment 15: Call Center Intake Form)
 - Each caller's name and call-back number or other contact information should be taken
 - If a caller reports a missing person, as much information as possible should be noted, including the primary next-of-kin, and the address and contact information of the primary next-of-kin
 - \circ $\,$ The reason for the call should be documented
 - A person may call to inform that a person previously reported as missing has been found. The caller's information should be taken, as well as the information of the found person. This information should be forwarded to law enforcement and the medicolegal authority.

- The need for a follow-up call should be documented as well as the individual responsible for making the call
- Call-takers should turn these forms into the Call Center supervisor at the end of the shift for entry into a database
- Forms should be stored in a resource binder at the Call Center
- The information collected should be forwarded to law enforcement and the local medicolegal authority based on the prioritization category
- A packet or binder full of reference information for call-takers should be maintained, including:
 - Hotel and transportation information for the area
 - o Updates delivered in the most recent family briefing
 - List of standardized answers for frequently asked questions
 - List of services being provided at the FAC and associated contact information
 - Latest press releases
 - Updated numbers of fatalities, injuries, and missing persons for reference

Behavioral Health Services

The stress and emotions following an MFI can be tough for many family members. Behavioral health services are available to anyone ranging from incident survivors, to the family members and friends of the victims, to incident responders, FAC staff, and volunteers.

- Behavioral health services should be arranged through the Local Mental Health Authority (LMHA)
- These services should be available during all operational hours of the FAC
- Records of the number of contacts that behavioral health personnel make should be maintained
- Behavioral health staff may be referred as counselors, to make the individuals feel more at ease
- Psychological first aid and crisis intervention services and educational materials should be available
- Open rooms should be available for private behavioral health services, as some people will only open up about how they are feeling in a private space
- A diverse team of professionals should be assembled to offer behavioral health services (e.g. social workers, family and child therapists, marriage counselors)
 - The personnel should provide referrals, as requested, to local behavioral health professionals in the families' hometowns
- Employ the SAFER Model (Stabilize, Acknowledge, Facilitate, Encourage, Referral)

- Stabilize Behavioral health staff should establish a relationship with the person by exhibiting patience and reassurance, treating them with respect and dignity, and addressing them by name. Their role in the process and any limitations they may have in helping them should be described. Staff should be honest and avoid false promises.
- Acknowledge Behavioral health staff should recognize the impact of the crisis on the person by listening to them tell their story and reactions
- Facilitate Behavioral health staff should assist and enable understanding by providing normalization and reassurance as necessary
- Encourage Behavioral health staff should encourage effective coping mechanisms by ensuring the person's basic needs are met. Staff should make certain the person is managing stress through positive and healthy means. Staff should identify whether the person has or wants someone to help them cope with the situation and inform them that help is available.
- Referral Behavioral health staff should provide the person with a referral for continued support, only if necessary
- The following phrases should be avoided when interacting with individuals:
 - "It could be worse"
 - "I understand"
 - "Don't feel bad"
 - "You're strong, you'll get through this"
 - "Don't cry"
 - "It's God's will"
- Confrontation, placing blame, criticism, or sarcasm should be avoided when speaking with grieving individuals
- Behavioral health services may assist in coordinating site visits or memorials which can be cathartic for the victims' families and friends
 - This is an optional part of the FAC process
 - A briefing would be necessary for the attendees to be prepared for what they might face, such as sights, smell, and potential emotions
 - Only the families and friends of the victims, involved crew members, incident survivors, and ground survivors should be allowed to attend
 - Coordination for the site visit or memorial should be between the FAC Coordinator, Emergency Management Coordinator, and on-scene Incident Commander, if the scene is still active
- Consider the behavioral health of the incident responders
 - Stress management training should be provided to staff members and new and relief staff should be briefed about what they can expect during their shift

- Staff should be cautioned against getting too emotionally involved with the incident. Encourage them to be sympathetic rather than empathetic. Empathy can rapidly become overwhelming for a person.
- Staff should be reminded that they are part of a team and they are not alone in what they are doing, feeling, or experiencing
- Break rooms should be provided in the FAC for staff to take breaks and clear their minds from time to time
- Staff should eat and drink properly, avoid alcohol, and engage in exercise
- If feasible, teams working in a high stress environment should be rotated to a lower stress environment from time to time
- After each shift, a debrief should be conducted with the staff members to allow them to express their feelings and share what successes or challenges they came across during that shift. This can be one-on-one or in a group setting. Any takeaways may be immediately applied to the next shift.

Spiritual Care Services

Spiritual care services should be broad and go across the boundaries of different faiths. Unwelcome spiritual intrusion should be avoided, as families should not feel pressure to buy into or be a part of a certain faith through the counseling they receive.

- Interreligious, spiritual counseling should be available to families and staff who request it
- Families' religious or spiritual beliefs should be identified if they choose to share the information, especially since there may be certain religious or spiritual beliefs and traditions regarding autopsies and the disposition of remains
- Members of the clergy may conduct services and worship opportunities, and may serve as members of a death notification team
- Members of the clergy may offer the following:
 - Assistance to behavioral health staff to provide emotional support
 - Assistance to families calling into the Call Center
 - \circ $% \left(Assistance with the antemortem interview teams and death notification teams \right)$
 - \circ Availability to be with families in a quiet room, if needed
 - Provide emotional support to FAC staff as needed
- Rooms should be available to allow families to meet privately with spiritual counselors
- Spiritual counselors should be stationed throughout the FAC, readily available if an individual needs to talk
- Spiritual counselors should interact with families and staff on a general basis to provide support and see how they are holding up emotionally

Child Care Services

Some families coming to the FAC may have young children with them. The provision of child care services enables the parents to attend the briefings, meetings, and interviews, and deal with the difficult situation, all while their children are being cared for by qualified personnel.

- The area designated for child care services should be safe and secure
- Child Care Centers being operated inside the FAC do not require a license to operate if they will not be in operation for more than three (3) consecutive weeks or 40 days in a 12-month period
 - If the Child Care Center meets the temporary criteria and does not need a license, no background checks on Child Care Center staff are required
 - Examples of practical professionals to operate the FAC Child Care Center are teachers, RNs, LVNs, etc. These individuals should already have background checks to some capacity, alleviating the burden of risk surrounding unregulated child care.
- A range of activities to keep the children occupied should be provided, and the area chosen for child care services should be far enough away from the antemortem and incident briefing rooms
- There should not be any televisions in the immediate vicinity of the child care area that are tuned to news media or are otherwise broadcasting information regarding the MFI
- The following behavioral health tips should be considered when operating the child care center:
 - Children should be kept away from media and bystanders, any traumatic sights and sounds, and from distressed individuals
 - Children should remain with their loved ones and caregivers whenever possible
 - FAC staff should speak to children using age appropriate language and explanations
 - A child should never be forced to speak if he or she refuses to talk. A child should not be forced to recount memories of the trauma or talk about his or her feelings before he or she is ready.
 - If the child is ready to express his or her feelings, they should be given the option of doing so through writing, drawing, or playing with toys
 - Metaphors should not be used, such as telling a child that his or her loved one has "gone to sleep," as this can make the child afraid to sleep

Registration

 Parent(s)/guardian(s) should sign their child(ren) into the Child Care Center using an admission form. The parent's or guardian's driver's license should be verified and the date and time of arrival should be noted (Attachment 16: Child Care Center Intake Form).

- Give the child and parent/guardian matching wristbands marked with the parent's or guardian's driver's license number for rapid verification at discharge
- Ask the child's parent(s)/guardian(s) about any allergies the child has or if the child takes any medications

Logistics

- Age appropriate toys should be available and activities should be planned for children to keep them entertained
- Healthy snacks and drinks should be readily available
- The child care center should be set up near a restroom with a diaper changing station
- Child therapists and psychiatrists should be available and on-site to help children express their feelings through art or other cathartic activities, if needed
- A small first-aid kit should be kept in the Child Care Center for minor injuries
- Diaper changing supplies should be on hand
- Consider having some blankets, pillows, cots, cribs, and other comfortable furniture if there are children who want to take naps

Staffing

- Child care staff should check-in and check-out of the FAC in the same manner as other FAC staff and volunteers
- Appropriate ways to work with grieving children should be reviewed with staff
- Safety procedures and should be reiterated and proper hygiene practices should be emphasized

Closing Procedures

- At the end of the day, all children should be reunited with their parents or guardians
- When a parent or guardian arrives to pick up a child, his or her driver's license should be verified to ensure it matches the admission form and the wristband on the child
- The parent or guardian must sign the child out of the Child Care Center and include the sign-out time and date
- A report should be written to include any major events or observances from the shift
- All surfaces and toys should be disinfected

First-Aid

The provision of a medical first-aid station onsite is imperative in case there is any type of injury or stress-borne illness at the FAC.

 Doctors, nurses, and/or emergency medical technicians should staff the first-aid station to tend to minor medical issues and provide initial, rapid evaluations of emergency medical issues

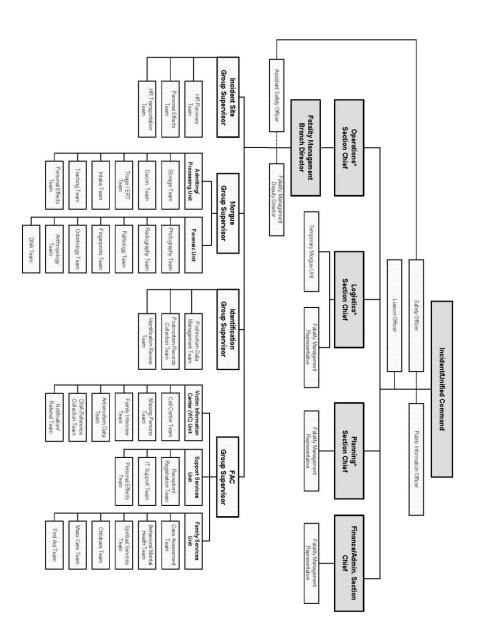

- Staff should arrange to have the patient transported to a nearby hospital if his or her condition warrants
- Medication procedures should be incorporated into the first-aid station and access to common pharmaceuticals should be considered
- Some staff should be positioned around the facility during large events, such as the family briefings

Demobilization of the FAC

Remaining responsibilities and activities are usually coordinated by the local EOC and JP/ME's office. Planning for FAC demobilization will determine which agencies will remain engaged in family assistance activities once the FAC is closed.

- If the MFI was a criminal act, family briefings should continue as necessary to keep families updated on the investigation
- Operation of the call center hotline should continue, if there are still calls coming in
- Any families still needing behavioral health services or spiritual care services should be referred to other specialists
- Responsibility for any remaining death notifications should be coordinated
- Long term discussions should be conducted with families regarding potential memorial services (initial and on the anniversary) and commemorative monuments
