Environmental Health Training for Community Health Workers/Promotores

The Southwest Center for Pediatric Environmental Health (SWCPEH), Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center El Paso (TTUHSC El Paso) Department of Emergency Medicine, and the West Texas Regional Poison Center (WTPC) are proud to sponsor a one-day environmental health training in Presidio, Texas. This free training will lead participants to understand the connection between the environment and our health. This training is meant for community health workers, promotores, and other public health professionals that are directly working with the community. We will cover topics such as why children are at an increased risk for environmental hazardous exposures, lead exposure, keeping your family protected from hazardous household chemicals, and emergency preparedness.

Training will be available in both English and Spanish.

This training is FREE of charge!
